

Protecting personal information when working remotely

Many Queensland government employees work remotely. It's important to remember the Information Privacy Act 2009 applies even when you are working away from the office.

Refer to your agency's remote working policies and procedures and follow these tips to mitigate the privacy risks of working remotely.

